The linen room winter

A cool linen curtain moves with the afternoon sea breeze. Its texture gives the room a softer light without closing off the view.

This note is part of the 2012 Tiera house collection. The press office can arrange further background, interviews and a selection of photographs.