Handmade ceramics winter

A potter shapes the rim of a bowl by hand. Small differences between pieces show through when the table is laid for supper.

This note is part of the 2012 Tiera house collection. The press office can arrange further background, interviews and a selection of photographs.